ASG The Nature of Peace

Examples of regions that have recently undergone a transition to peace after an internal armed conflict can be found around the world. Despite a relatively thorough understanding of the social and political factors that influence and foster reconciliation and success or failure thereof, there is a lack of understanding how economic, political, and social processes that are innate in reconciliation, affect the natural environment and can lead to, or further undermine, environmental justice and sustainability.

Our aim is to explore the causal relations between peace and the natural environment in the context of internal armed conflicts.

Members

Torsten Krause (Coordinator)

Studierektor, postdoc, Lunds university centre for sustainability studies (LUCSUS), Lund University

torsten.krause@lucsus.lu.se +46 46 222 16 76
http://www.lucsus.lu.se/torsten-krause

Ana Maria Vargas Fallas

Fariborz Zelli

Lina Eklund

María Andrea Nardi

Sandra Valencia

Turaj Faran

Maria Ericson

Jonas Ardö

Micael Runnström